AMG LEADERSHIP AWARD 2017

We are pleased to announce that Jennifer Widdis, Department Manager in Mechanical & Aerospace Engineering (MAE) was awarded the AMG Leadership Award for 2017. Jennifer has contributed significantly to the AMG Group with her leadership and involvement in several initiatives and committees. As co-chair of the AMG Research Administration Subcommittee, she spearheaded the successful mentorship program aimed at providing training and networking of grants administrators, and has participated in numerous financial and HR pilot programs, including the Financial Reporting Usability Group and Academic Hiring Application Advisory Committee, consequently contributing to improvements in administrative systems. Colleagues describe Jennifer as a voice of reason, approachable, levelheaded and someone who goes out of her way to help anyone, even when she is extremely busy.

“Jennifer has contributed significantly to the AMG Group with her leadership and involvement in several initiatives and committees.”

Jennifer previously worked in the Office of the Dean of Faculty and never hesitates to share her knowledge of the workings of Nassau Hall with colleagues, which is invaluable. She is an inspiration to all, and a joy to work with. Jennifer is a member of the AMG Steering Committee, currently serving as treasurer, and co-chair of the AMG IT Committee.

ADMINISTRATIVE UNIT SYSTEM PROJECT

In spring 2017, the AMG submitted a SAGIT proposal for the exploration of an Administrative Unit System to aid academic units with consolidating data from across the University, and pairing those records with department-created data. Stemming from the innovative work done by the department of East Asian Studies and Molecular Biology, this project seeks to provide a uniform tool or suite of tools to marry enterprise data with department managed data in support of faculty fund projections, fund commitment tracking, department financial planning, and personnel tracking needs. Our goal is to reduce the manual effort and time required to answer routine resources questions.

The project is now in the needs assessment phase, which we will complete by spring 2018. During the needs assessment we will inventory functional requirements, prioritize scope and recommend a direction for the supporting tools. This project is sponsored by three academic managers and the Provost Office, ensuring the solution speaks from the voice of our academic units. We expect to conduct needs assessment review sessions with academic units this winter (Jan/ Feb). If you have any questions about the project please contact Nancy Blaustein, Jennifer Widdis or Els Paine.

NEW MANAGER IN GERMAN

Greetings!

As the new manager for the German Department, I’d like to thank all of you for your warm welcome to the Academic Managers Group. Although I have only recently arrived at the department, I have been associated with Princeton University for a while, most recently as the administrative manager for the Office of the Dean of Undergraduates, or as it is more commonly referred to “ODUS”. ODUS is largely known to our students for hosting Lawnparties (yes, it’s one word), and Class Day, but it’s also home to Outdoor Action, Frist Programming, Campus Club, Student Agencies, and the Committee on Discipline. In addition to managing staff and the operating budget, my responsibilities included updating the annual content of Rights, Rules, Responsibilities and administering the selection process for the Pyne Prize, the highest general distinction awarded each year to a graduating senior.

Prior to ODUS, I worked as a program coordinator at Rutgers University in the Office of the President overseeing their Freshman Seminar Program, and the Office of Fellowships.

On a more personal note, I have four children, and live in Lawrenceville. The house seems to grow ever smaller because my youngest, a very persuasive animal lover, adds one new pet per year. Luckily, she’ll be off to college before our home fills completely.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Are you thinking about attending a workshop or conference? Here are a few suggested programs:

Women’s Leadership Success in Higher Education - March 27 - 29, 2018

EACUBO – AMI – Academic Management Institute (Cornell – NY – August each year)

Assertiveness Skills for Managers & Supervisors – New York, November 29, 2017

If you would like to share a training opportunity with the AMG, please send us details for inclusion in the next issue.
HR SUBCOMMITTEE UPDATE – MANAGER TITLES

In Spring 2017 the Human Resources subcommittee submitted a proposal to the HR Compensation team requesting a review of the titles of academic managers. Specifically, the committee asked Compensation to review (1) department manager titles for external equity, to ensure that titles are consistent with staff at peer institutions performing similar functions and (2) titles of academic managers in centers, programs, institutes and other academic units to ensure internal consistency. The proposal included information gathered by the committee, from peer institutions.

Representatives from the AMG had a preliminary meeting with HR, including the Compensation team, who presented their initial findings and recommendations for revised titles for department managers. It is expected that Compensation will make their final recommendation with regard to new titles for department managers later this Fall, and any change in titles will be communicated to those managers who are affected. The HR subcommittee will request a review of titles in non-department academic units, since that issue has not yet been addressed.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS

The U.S. embassy in Turkey has announced a temporary suspension of visa services, effective immediately. The suspension is due to a diplomatic dispute between the U.S. and Turkey and only impacts visa processing in Turkey. This is not a general visa suspension directed towards Turkish citizens. At this time, it’s unclear how long the suspension will last. You are not impacted by this action if:

- You already hold a valid U.S. visa (e.g., F-1, J-1) when entering or re-entering the U.S.
- You apply for a visa at another U.S. consular post outside of Turkey

International students and scholars who are traveling to Turkey, and have an expired U.S. visa, will need to schedule a U.S. visa appointment in another country prior to returning. Please consult with a Davis International Center advisor if you have questions about how this announcement impacts you.
